

Our Story

Parents are an integral part of keeping classroom ratios low and quality high. Our parental involvement is attained through:

- Attending our monthly evening parent meeting
- Contributing 4 hours each month to one of our committees
- Coming together twice yearly at Saturday parent workdays
- Working up to 4 hours weekly assisting our teachers*

The College Hill Childcare Cooperative was founded in 1981 by a group of parents who were dissatisfied with what they found in most childcare centers. College Hill is one of the nation's few childcare cooperatives. We utilize parental involvement to achieve superior care.

Parents have the unique opportunity of participating in up to four hours a week with their child's class, getting to know their child's friends and teachers, and directly contributing to their child's early learning. This is a great opportunity that also allows moms and dads to decrease their tuition based on the number of hours worked.

Throughout the day you can find our parents playing, reading stories, cleaning, giving hugs and doing anything that is needed to assist our teachers in making our classrooms educational and nurturing.

Parents looking for an alternative to other childcare centers turn to Coop where they help to sustain this very special place for our children.
